

Fall is upon us and the best way to enjoy the beauty of the season is a getaway to Wisconsin's Northwoods. With thousands of acres of forests, dramatic fall color and endless activities, a road trip through Wisconsin's small towns of Hayward, Cable or Ashland may just be the best thing you do all year.

What To Do

There's no shortage of fun in the Northwoods of Wisconsin. Get in touch with your inner-outdoorsmen and take a canoe trip down the St. Croix Scenic Riverway. Climb into the mouth of a giant fiberglass fish at the Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame in Hayward, or view some unique artwork at the Ashland Mural walk. Whatever you do, don't forget to bring your camera. This is peak fall color season after all.

Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame and Museum

Where else can you climb into the mouth of a giant 5-story tall fiberglass fish? Whether you're a seasoned fisher, newcomer or just want to see the famous "Big Muskie" statue, the Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame in Hayward is a Northwoods favorite attraction. The hall of fame serves as an international headquarters for education, recognition and promotion of fresh water fishing. The museum holds over 50,000 sport fishing historical artifacts from lures, rods, reels and accessories. Not to mention, there are over 300 mounted fish and 1,000 antique motors on display. 715-634-4440; www.freshwater-fishing.org

Saint Croix National Scenic Riverway

Stretching all the way along the western Wisconsin border from Prescott to Cable, the St. Croix National Scenic Riverway is a more than 150-mile wonder. Known for its calm waters, especially its tributaries, the St. Croix is the perfect river to spend a day on the water. For a leisurely day outdoors, rent a canoe or kayak from Bear Country Boat Rentals in Hayward. A three-hour tour on the Namekagon River tributary is $40 for a canoe, and $35 for a kayak. As you make your way down the peaceful Namekagon, you'll see an abundance of wildlife and gorgeous fall color. 1-888-847-7869; www.bearcountysportinggoods.com/boatrentals.htm

Where To Eat

Contrary to popular belief, restaurants in deep wooded areas in the Midwest don't always cater to lumberjacks. Check out these unique restaurants, serving up more than just flapjacks.

The Original Famous Dave's

Famous Dave's humble roots began in the beautiful back woods of Hayward, a small town of only 1,800 people. Famous Dave of the Lac Courte Oreilles Ojibway Tribe opened his first restaurant here, and today it remains the original Famous Dave's. Serving up all-American barbeque feasts on a garbage can lid the way Dave used to do it, to delicious award-winning bread pudding with praline sauce, this small hometown restaurant quickly became a favorite. Its instant success has given Famous Dave's national status, and it is now a chain serving up barbeque favorites across the country. The Famous Dave's in Hayward, now privately owned, still remains the original restaurant and attracts 4,000 to 5,000 visitors a week. 888-774-2674; www.famousdaveshayward.com
