Packing the Right Gear

Being prepared for your trail experience can be the difference between a good outing and a bad memory. Here are a few things to remember before you hit the trail.

- Take along a map of the trail and compass. Know your route before heading out onto the trail.
- Inform a responsible person on where you are going and your estimated time of arrival.
- Opportunities to purchase fuel near the trail are limited. Be sure to fill your tank and take along extra fuel. It is also a good idea to pack spark plugs, repair tools, drinking water, food, extra clothing, insect repellent, and a first aid kit.
- Know yourself and your machine. A mechanical breakdown may mean a long hike to get help.
- You may occasionally encounter logging activity along the trail. Please use caution and respect the logger’s equipment as they earn their livelihood.
- Bring along a bag to pack out your litter and any that you find along the trail.

Please

- Be a part of the solution. Report problem areas or trail damage to the Great Divide Ranger District.
- Riding respectfully protects you, the future of your sport, and the environment. Be cautious of oncoming traffic, and stop at all road crossings.

All trails on the Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest are closed to ATV use from March 15 to April 30 each year.
